In regard to Poland, the agreements are subdivided into political, economic, cultural and other agreements ranging from January 1950 to February 1951. They include the Oder/Neisse border agreement, trade agreements, agreements for cultural collaboration, an agreement to take mutual measures for flood and ice control in Frankfurt/Oder, and an agreement for mutual plant control (extermination of potato bugs).

Agreements with Czechoslovakia include an agreement for the exchange of goods, services, and payments, a declaration to oppose the Western policy of interfering in domestic affairs of other countries, plant control agreements, etc. They range between January 1950 and February 1951.

Agreements with Rumania and Bulgaria are similar to the ones described above, ranging from June 1950 to March 1951, and include also agreements for technical and Scientific collaboration with both countries.

The agreements with Albania consist of a trade and credit agreement and a financial aid agreement, valid until 31 December 1955, which were signed in Berlin on 27 March 1951.

The agreement with Communist China, dated 10 October 1950, is one covering the exchange of goods and payments.
